Cause of Damage:

While escorting Convoy HX 229A routed just to the south of Greenland went aground on a berg at or before dawn on March 19. Position assumed more or less same as "Svend Foyn" which sank as a result of a colliding with an iceberg on the same day.

Damage Description:

Destroyed asdic dome. Lieutenant-Commander A.E. Willmot, R.N.R., captain of the "Waveney" (another excort ship which was also damaged by ice at about the same time) descibes:

"Shortly after dawn on the 19th, 'Aberdeen" was sighted to starboard 'aground' on an underwater ledge of a large, irregular shaped iceberg; she ws heeling slightly to starboard, had ice on the foc's'le forward of the duns, and was down by the stern. I closed her with a view to rendering assistance and passing a towline
